41/07 PUBLIC QUESTION TIME

The meeting was adjourned for public questions.

Crime

PCSO Sue Fellows attended to answer questions and give a report on crime in Avening (see attached).

Concerns were raised over antisocial behaviour taking place outside of the shop at night. It was asked whether the bench outside of the shop could be relocated so as to not encourage people to meet there at night. The culprits were known. There had also been problems with shoplifting in the shop during the daytime. There were also concerns over a 999 call made at 1.30am concerning the behaviour. There was no police attendance.

PCSO Sue Fellows advised that ALL those suffering from the antisocial behaviour should call the crime number 0845 0901234 on each occasion it happens. This allows the police to build up a picture of what is happening and hopefully then provide a service accordingly. If anyone is available to attend at the time of the call, then they will. PCSO's can move people on or give antisocial behaviour warnings if needed, which can be the start of the process towards an ASBO (through the courts).

Re the bench. It was suggested that a decision not be made on this tonight. It was noted that the bench was in memory of Jessie Skinner (old postmistress) and so it was well placed outside the shop. Likewise moving it would stop others using the bench for proper purposes.

It was suggested that those suffering the antisocial behaviour should keep a diary so that this can help the police also.

Re the shoplifting. PCSO Sue Fellows advised incidents should be reported to the police on the 0845 number, but if someone was caught in the act then they should call 999 and have the offender arrested. This would likely act as a deterrent to others.

PCSO Sue Fellows asked for volunteers for the Key Information Network (training in November). The Clerk would advertise in the Villager.

The Chairman thanked PCSO Sue Fellows for attending.

APFA

APFA handed in a summary of accounts with an invoice for their annual grant, along with a summary of the last year's work. Full accounts would be submitted as soon as they were signed off. There had been problems with the building of the flying fox and planning permission had to be sought. This was in hand. It was decided that the details of the application would be completed by APFA and then passed to the Clerk to submit as the Parish Council was the landowner.

Jon Glover had been appointed the new chair of APFA. The Chairman thanked Clare Steele for all she had done over the last year.
